The Town of Mattapoisett on the shores of Buzzards Bay, has a long and colorful history dating back to 1640. The name comes from the Wampanoag language and means "place of rest." For two hundred years the Village of Mattapoisett lay within the Township of Rochester, but in 1857 Mattapoisett petitioned and became an independent town.

The long wharves at the water's edge, built from granite from a local quarry, serve as a silent memorial to the once thriving ship-building industry. Shipyard Park, adjacent to the wharves is the site of Jonathan Holmes' shipyard where in 1878 the Wanderer, the last whaleship to be built in Mattapoisett, was launched. For many years the flagpole in the park was the mizzen mast salvaged from the Wanderer after it was wrecked off Cuttyhunk in 1924. Across Water Street is the famous Meigs' Tavern (Now the Inn on Shipyard Park) built in 1800 by a shipyard owner, Joseph Meigs. At the entrance to the harbor stands Ned's Point Light, constructed in 1837 by another shipyard owner, Leonard Hammond. To this day the light guides the way of returning vessels into Mattapoisett's busy harbor. Today Mattapoisett is a thriving community with schools, churches, stores, restaurants, banks, a library, museum and a variety of businesses. In the summer the Harbor is filled with hundreds of pleasure craft. People enjoy our bike path and walking trails.
